YOUTH LEAPS TO DEATH, GOING TO REFORM SCHOOL

Edward Meanley, 17, Was Being Taken to St. Mary's, in Baltimore.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 14.—While en route to Baltimore in custody of Policeman "Bill" Jones, of juvenile and domestic relations court, to be placed in St. Mary's Industrial School there, Edward Meanley, seventeen years old, yesterday jumped from a train between here and Washington and was killed, according to advices received here this afternoon.

The youth was being sent to Baltimore by his father, E. Henry Meanley, well known in local business circles, because he objected to going to school here. He is a grandson of Mrs. E. G. Kidd, of this city, who amassed a fortune in the pickle manufacturing business, and a nephew of Leo Kidd, also, of Richmond.

It was presumed that he was trying to make a getaway from the policeman when he plunged from the train to his death.

MEDBURY

Says a Lunch Wagon Is the Only Place Where Hash Uses Its Own Name

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

A lunch wagon is a food chariot where they serve one syllable meals.

These ham and egg caravans never serve any dishes that average working men can't pronounce.

They print the menu in chalk on the side of the wagon, and you have to go hungry if you can't read the handwriting on the wall.

While the hash you get in one of these coffee and doughnut busses may be a crime, it doesn't go under an alias.

It is hash and it uses its own name.

Most of these eating buggies don't give you any silverware, but they serve you your coffee cold so that you can stir it with your finger.

There is nothing classy about these luncheon vehicles; the waiter is the cook, and he works in an apron. If he had a dress suit he'd get a job in a hotel.

They don't make any covert charge and you use the fire buckets for finger bowls.

The cups are heavy and have a crack in them just like the Liberty Bell. And from the looks of the cup they probably both got cracked at the same time.

The wagons are very sanitary, you never see any flies in them. There isn't room.

The proprietor has to cater to either one or the other—flies or customers.

Customers are more profitable. The flies used to walk out without paying.

A man may be King in his own home, but if he tries to walk out of one of these places without paying he'll get crowned, too.

They don't have any orchestras. The cash register is the only music the boss wants to hear.

Every meal is a song and he doesn't care how many verses or choruses you play on it.

"Small Steak—40c" is the most expensive piece they've got.

You get an extra chorus of French fried potatoes with every thirty-cent record.

The proprietor of these lunch wagons makes so much money that he eats all his meals in a restaurant.

Mayor James M. Duncan has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to the warehouse at the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation and at the Mutual Ice Company plant last Saturday night.
